Kata Pengantar

Human Development Report (2007) melaporkan bahwa dampak pemanasan global pada tahun 2000-2004 telah menyebabkan sekitar 262 juta orang menjadi korban bencana iklim dan 98% di antaranya adalah masyarakat di dunia ketiga. Bencana tersebut terjadi akibat adanya peningkatan suhu antara 3-4 derajat celsius yang menyebabkan 350 juta orang di dunia kehilangan tempat tinggalnya karena banjir. Tepat satu bulan sebelum Himpunan Sarjana Kesusasteraan Indonesia (HISKI) menggelar Konferensi Internasional Kesusasteraan XXV di Yogyakarta dengan mengangkat tema "Dari Sastra untuk Bumi", pada akhir September 2016 Indonesia dirundung duka. Banjir bandang melanda Garut dan tanah longsor terjadi di Sumedang, Jawa Barat. Banjir bandang yang menyebabkan banyak korban tersebut disinyalir disebabkan oleh terjadinya kerusakan di hulu Sungai Cimanuk (Kompas, 24/9/2016). Lagi-lagi ulah tangan manusia yang menjadi penyebabnya.

Krisis dan bencana lingkungan hidup telah menjadi masalah serius bagi kehidupan manusia. Banjir, tanah longsor, kebakaran hutan, erosi, berkurangnya debit air permukaan, pencemaran sungai, dan banyak yang lainnya selalu merupakan akibat yang menyertai tindakan manusia yang amat rakus dan eksplotatif terhadap alam. Paradigma alam sebagai sumber daya seringkali menjadi alasan utama untuk menjadikan alam sebagai objek yang harus dikeruk habis-habisan dengan mengabaikan pelestariannya. Alam akhirnya tentang narasi besar penyelamatan lingkungan. Pengaruh yang diberikan sastra sangat kuat tetapi halus. Ia mempengaruhi tanpa meledak-ledak, seperti yang terjadi dalam orasi kampanye politik.

Sastra memiliki daya gugah untuk membangun kesadaran, bukan menjajakan trik dan kiat-kiat praktis. Bersebab inilah maka sastra dilirik sebagai sarana pendidikan lingkungan. Sastra (hijau) akhirnya berusaha untuk menawarkan narasi ekologis bahwa bumi adalah rumah besar yang wajib kita perlihara karena – meminjam istilah Suminto A. Sayuti – disanalah kita tinggal dan hidup bersama. Oleh karena itu, sastra (hijau) kadang tidak hanya menanamkan kesadaran, ia juga mengekspresikan narasi perlawanan terhadap segala bentuk eksloitasi terhadap alam.

Atas latar belakang itulah buku ini hadir. Sejumlah tulisan, baik berupa hasil riset maupun pemikiran mendalam, dihimpun dalam buku ini. Ditulis oleh sejumlah peneliti, dosen, sastrawan, dan pegiat lingkungan buku ini mendokumentasikan ide dan gagasan pendidikan lingkungan melalui sastra. Buku ini merupakan satu dari lima buah buku pemikiran dan satu antologi sastra hijau yang dilahirkan dalam “Konferensi Internasional Kesusastraan XXV di Universitas Negeri Yogyakarta” pada 13-15 Oktober 2016. Inilah buku pertama yang berbicara tentang Pendidikan Lingkungan melalui Sastra. Buku kedua berjudul Menggagas Pembelajaran Sastra Hijau. Buku ketiga mengangkat Sastra Hijau dan Ekofeminisme. Buku keempat mendedah Sastra, Kekuasaan, dan Penyelamatan Lingkungan. Sementara itu, buku terakhir bertajuk Sastra Hijau dalam Berbagai Media.

Usaha untuk menghimpun dan menghadirkan ide, gagasan, pemikiran, dan kajian-kajian yang berkaitan dengan sastra dan ekologi melalui buku ini merupakan langkah awal untuk terlibat dan menjadikan ekologi sastra sebagai arus utama gerakan kultural akan bahaya kerusakan ekologis di sekitar kita. Sastra mengambil peran di luar langkah-langkah struktural dan politis dalam pelestarian alam. Sastra memilih jalur kultural untuk memberikan penyadaran akan tanggungjawab manusia menjaga bumi.

Selamat membaca dan melakukan perbincangan kultural dan akademik dengan seluruh gagasan dalam buku ini. Sebagai pijakan awal tentu kehadiran buku ini hanya berperan untuk memantik kita agar terus melanjutkan ikhtiar nyata menjaga dan mencintai bumi kita. Selepas penerbitan buku ini, diharapkan akan hadir penerbitan-penerbitan lain, baik berupa kajian-kajian ilmiah maupun karya sastra berperspektif sastra hijau.

INTRODUCTION

Manuscript is a heritage which was written in local dialect, handwriting and using local materials in accordance with the socio-cultural background of the manuscript. Manuscripts often also referred to as a script. The manuscript is a concrete object that can be seen or held (Baried, 1994: 52) In this sense manuscript includes stationery along with materials and binding techniques, the cover, the script along with the spelling system, as well as publications, illuminations, and the ornaments of the script (Saputra: 2008: 4). While the text is the script translation using other languages or other signs according to the type of discourse (Saputra, 2008: 5). The manuscript and the text are the objects of philology. Manuscripts and texts in the context of philology are products of the past that contain different cultural context and time from the current situation. The distance of time causing some problems and misunderstanding. It required more knowledge in order to understand the text.

Philology is the discipline studying about the authentic literary works. This is associated with the definition of literature according to the Javanese. According to the Javanese, the literature is all either written or oral works which can be used as teaching materials. As a work, the old literature becomes the object of literature manuscript. Manuskrip Busana Tradisional Kraton Surakarta is a manuscript that discusses about the traditional clothing used by the Kraton Surakarta (Surakarta Palace) members, from the king up to the courtiers.

The traditional clothing is a source of cultural knowledge in the time. Todays, the references about the palace traditional clothing are limited. Meanwhile, there are many academic communities and practitioners do not understand a lot about the appearance and the form of the traditional clothes.

The article is based on a study entitled Busana Tradisional dalam Manuskrip-manuskrip Jawa (Traditional Clothing in Javanese manuscripts). The object of the research is the traditional clothing manuscripts stored at Yogyakarta library and museum. The manuscripts are as follows.

METHOD

The text was analyzed using modern philology theory which is based on the notion that the differences or variations in the text are the creativity; the study aims to interpret the text. The steps are script inventory, text description, text comparison, the determination of the text to be edited, transliteration, and translation (Saputra, 2008: 81).

Because the ultimate goal of the research is to translate the text and describe the traditional clothing contained in traditional clothing manuscripts stored in libraries and museums in Yogyakarta, the steps are about texts inventory, text description, transliteration and translations.

2. Hamemayu Hayuning Bawana Concept in Kraton Surakarta Tradisional Clothing

The basic philosophy of Mataram Kingdom government system is Hamemayu Hayuning Bawana. This philosophy literally means "to make the world beautiful (ayu)". It can be interpreted as building sustainable environment. The constructions are very concerned about nature conservation and cultural assets. While hamemayu can be interpreted as memayungin means protect from everything that be able to interfere the safety or discomfort. While as the object of protections, they are "hayuning bawana", rahayuning jagad or the safety and preservation of the world and its contents (Wagiran, 2012: 11).

The essence of life according to Javanese is a harmony of regularities in order to achieve the goals of the cosmos which are harmony, justice and the regularityas contained in the concept of Tri Hita Karana (three harmonious relationships that causes happiness; namely the harmony of human relationships with God, other human, and nature). In this case the effort to reach the goal of the cosmos or Hamemayu Hayuning Bawana (building the prosperity of human being / adorn the world) and Hamemasuh Malaning Bumi (purifying the Earth) is Javanese's role to anggayuh kasampurnaning urip or finding the perfection of life and achieve mati mati patitis or the perfect ending of life (DIY Cultural Council, 2004).

The use of traditional dress called Kampuh for the military courtiers in making a formal appearance to the king implies the presence of fashion designers to decide the image of the Kampuh authority. Kampuh or dodot is a long batik cloth that is at least seven handkerchiefs calculated length and nine mori handkerchief width (Prawiromudjo, 1998: 80). Dodot according to Poerwadarminta (1939) is Javanese traditional clothing, which symbolizes the luxury and protector. It is in accordance with his duties as a soldier to give protection on the orders of the king.

The example type of dodot is as follows:

a. Dodot balumbangan motif

Dodot Balumbangan or Bango Buthak motif is a batik motif which has black and white background, in the middle of the dodot does not contain any batik but white. This motif is reminiscent of the most of Javanese house which has blumbang or pool. This blumbang can be used as pond (to keep the fish) or as waterpool which is then covered with a fence. This may indicate that the motif describes a relationship between the kingdom and the common people which appears in dodot. Dodot used by the prince or bride and groom on formal occasions. It is evident from the Manunggaling Kawula Gusti in order to maintain the nature or Memayu Hayuning Bawana.

b. Dodot Bangun Tulak Pradan and Dodot Gadhung Mlati Pradan

This dodot has black color, describing hunting activities and its animals, such as tigers, deer, and butterflies. In the middle of dodot is a white cloth. This dodot is used by the marriage couple at the ceremony. The images containing in dodot has symbolic meanings of harmony with nature including flora and fauna. In order to implement the concept of Memayu Hayuning Bawana in life, we have to establish the harmony of the nature. This dodot is used together with belt, pants, rope, kendhit, cendhe, wedhung rope, ukup, tumang, and kuluk. The sentana and the prince who wear this dodot looks prestigious, protecting the natural damage and protecting the people.

c. Sikepan

Sikepan is colored clothes with buttons located in the middle of the neck down, but the buttons are used outside the cloth. On the inside is a white vest.

Sikepan discussed at the manuscript is Sikepan for Wirabraja military courtiers. Sikepan to Panji, Daeng soldier, and Gonfalonier. While Sikepan for Kraton Surakarta military courtiers today is the Jayeng Astra, Prawira Anom, and Saragani as shown below.

Sikepan Golden Bludrian was used for the sentana, princes and kings. The Golden Bluduan has leaves (suluran) and flowers motif. As for the soldiers, they wear gold buttons. The ornament shows that the position of sentana, princes and kings are the nobility. They should take care of nature, protect the low society's interests. The figure of suluran (leaves) can be seen in the following figure.

(Doc. Widyastuti)

Although some fabrics were imported from the other countries, but the traditional clothing often uses local materials and local products for example lurik. Lurik is the material used to make sikepan. This clothing is used by courtiers as panajungan, courtiers parallel to mantra lebet, courtiers as ketangguung and nyutra. This may imply that the clothing is worn by the military courtiers who are included in the middle social strata. These soldiers are the soldiers who served as the guards. Therefore, the garment worn also reflects the nature of the guard. Lurik is interpreted as a striated wood chopped into a fence. Because of that, the task and the clothes look worth it.

(Doc. Widyastuti)

Meanwhile, cindhe fabric is used for pants and belts. Cindhe pants are used by Kaptin in military uniform and Bupati Wedana for meetings. Cindhe fabric is made from silk which has floral motif. Mari S. Londongan (1995: 34) writes that cindhe cloth distinguished on Cindhe Gubeng and Cindhe Sorot pants. Cindhe Gubeng pants are trousers worn by the prince to the king, while Cindhe Sorot pants are pants with a pointed tip like lined cones. Cindhe Sorot pants are used by bupati. This motif symbolizes the power that is harmless. Power is the basis of the kingdom leadership, but the powers are flexible. Life goes on as it is, with a variety of beauties that everyone can enjoy. This concept is in line with the concept of Hamemaya Hayuning Bawanatha that definesthat the palace's power is as the commander of the soldiers.

3. The Concept of Harmony Life in the Java Traditional Clothing.

The differences among clothings worn by different classes of courtiers, sentana, prince and king of the different social strata which implies a fairly sharp. This is motivated by the social structure, the palace culture that has stratified levels. This can be explained from the socio-cultural background where the clothing was made. The manuscripts in Pakubuwana IV and V era are still within the scope of the socio-cultural background of Islamic Mataram era. While the Mataram dynasty is a dynasty that emerged from a family of farmers (Moedjanto, 1994: 26) to be accepted by the people, the kings of this dynasty had tried to show its superiority as rahang kusuma, nembesing madu, wijining atapa, tedhaking andana warih (Moertono, 1968: 52). Besides, the Mataram dynasty saw that power as a whole and the unity. Power is thorough in all areas. The king's power as big as Agung Binathara king (Moedjanto, 1994: 28).

Based on its closeness to the farm because of the origin of this dynasty, the mindset or the concept is possible to always be close to nature by promoting harmony. At that time, people used to wear linen shorts combined with black or blue rough cotton shirt hang loose below the knee. Hair tied in a handkerchief for men (Stockdale, 2010: 202). The clothes are very different from the traditional clothing that developed in the palace.. Clothing in the palace was designed considering detail philosophy. The big difference in social status that appears on the traditional clothing implies a message from the king as highest. Therefore the common people have to put their position in both other human or nature.

Besides expected to have a noble character, the Javanese also have ngilmu titen (the power or capability to see the past events), ngilmu nilik (the power or capability to see anything outside the five senses), petung (the power or capability in calculating cause and effect of something) and ngilmu rasa (the power or capability to know someone's psychology or feeling). The combinations of those capabilities can create a world that hayu (good) hayam (protected) and peace (Bayuadhy, 2015: 169). Such views underlying the manufacture of traditional clothing design has been used from generations to generations in Surakarta Palace. The pattern of the earth and the universe seemed decorated various kinds of fabrics used for certain events and by certain social strata.

Similarly, the design of traditional clothing worn by the king, the prince and sentana showed the image as the person who should be respected on the otherhand, traditional cloting for military courtiers simbolize a guard duty. Although the military courtier and the musical courtiers called ungel-ungel is used for the troops but the clothing also has aesthetic touch. It can be seen in the selection of the colors, and the accessories used like keris, sword, spear, decorations, necklace, socks and belts.

CONCLUSION

Kraton Surakarta traditional clothing covering fashion for kings, princes, dalem sentana, and courtiers. The courtier includes military courtier from jejer up to Bupati Sepuh. Besides, there are ungel-ungel or musical soldier as well as the flag bearer (Gonfalonier). Each soldier has their own uniform. The uniforms used matches with their duty.

Traditional clothing includes Sikepan and Dodotan. Sikepan symbolizes a strong figure, ready to carry out the orders. While Dodotan symbolized the authoritative figure, which ruled Memayu Hayuning Bawana. Matching clothing worn by the sublime were Sikepan golden bluderan and Dodot which symbolize the power and the ones who cares to the interest of the common people.

The type of dodot like dodot balumbangan, bangau bothak, bango tulak, gadhung mlati symbolize the concept of harmony of the universe. Humans everywhere they are they have to remember and enjoy with their job. They also need to maintain the integrity of the universe.

Cinde fabric sometimes is used for making pants and belts. Cinde fabric has a pattern such as a series of scales serpent. It symbolizes the environmental diversity behind the human power ang human relationships among others.
